

The No-Screen Morning

CooCubby · English

Papa's phone is in the basket.

On Sunday morning, Papa Bear put his phone in a basket by the door. "Phones rest here today," he said.

Cubby looks for the tablet.

Cubby looked at the shelf. "Tablet?" "Resting too," said Papa Bear. "Today is a looking-and-doing day."

First, the garden.

First, the garden. Cubby watered the tomatoes with a tiny can. One, two, three red ones!

A ladybird!

A ladybird landed on Cubby's paw. He held very still. It had six legs and seven spots. He counted twice.

Pip brings the ball.

Pip the rabbit came with a ball. Kick! Roll! Chase! Cubby ran until his legs were giggly.

Ollie is sleepy in the tree.

Up in the tree, Ollie the owl yawned. "Hoo. Daytime is for sleeping," he said, and closed one eye.

Pancakes with Papa.

Then pancakes. Cubby stirred the bowl. Papa Bear flipped. One pancake landed on the floor. They laughed.

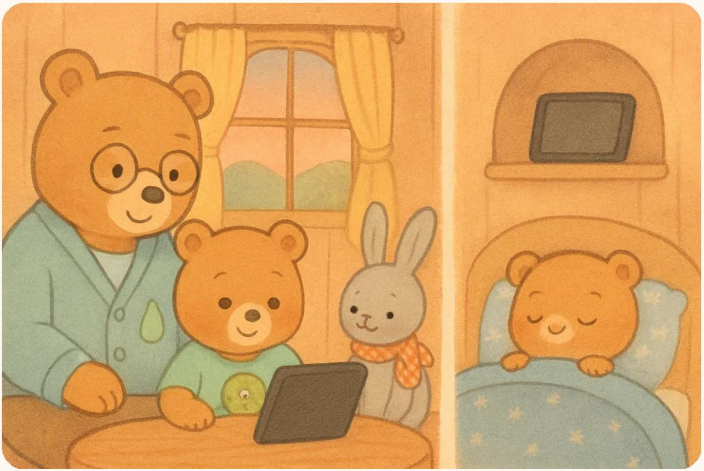

A story on the rug.

After pancakes, a story on the rug. Papa Bear did the voices. The dragon voice made Cubby squeak.

Where did the morning go?

"Where did the morning go?" said Cubby. "Into the garden, the ball, the pancakes, and the dragon," said Papa Bear.

Screens are for sometimes.

That evening Cubby watched one short show. Then the tablet went to sleep. "Screens are for sometimes," said Cubby. "Days are for doing."
